It is a joy to help First Time Home Buyers! I have had an awesome experience in helping a very special couple with their First Home. When I talk to them...they tell me how they are loving their new home! This is so exciting for me to know how happy they are!

Case Study: Liz Newell – Realtor

Build the Page

The first thing we did for Liz was optimize her page. This includes uploading her cover photo and profile picture, as well as updating her bio and contact information on her page.

Before we started engaging fans, we needed to grow her audience a bit. We sought out related local businesses Liz Newell's clients would use, such as interior design companies, mortgage companies, and local shops and community pages. Next, we reached out to local social media to show Newell's interest in her community. Finally, we uploaded her contact list into Facebook, before reaching out to her contacts by inviting them to "like" her new page.

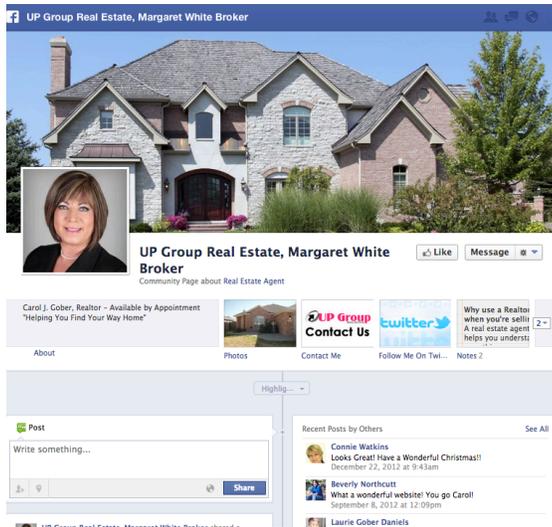

Generate Interest

After speaking with Liz, we agreed that post topics could be home-related or current events and news about Austin. Once we found content, we wrote posts including a call-to-action, encouraging her fans to read and react, whether it be by "liking" the post or commenting. Since all posts are scheduled beforehand in our SocialMadeSimple platform, Liz always has the ability to edit, change, or delete any posts, or add posts of her own.

Results

As a result of our optimization and engagement to start out her campaign, Liz Newell's fan count rose to over 140 in only 2 months, and her impressions and interactions greatly increased.

Plan

We closely analyze the statistics provided by the SocialMadeSimple platform. Analytics help us decide what days, times, and types of posts we schedule to ensure our Concierge service users are getting the most fan engagement possible. More fan engagement means your posts reach more people.

Communicate and Engage

Once a brand has been active on social media, it is important to make sure to respond to people who are engaging with your page with a "like," post, or comment. If someone asks a question on social media, it's important you answer it. We encourage our clients personally respond to any fan interaction on Facebook.

Results

After careful planning and strategizing, our approach of remaining active and conversational increased community engagement on UP Group Real Estate's Facebook page. UP Group's page experienced a dramatic rise in fan count, views, and interaction.

Case Study: First New England Mortgage

Sweepstakes

Starting with less than 60 fans, we knew we had to do something to grow their audience. In addition to engaging current fans, we decided to take a new approach: running a sweepstakes. To gain more “likes”, we offered people a chance to win a $250 American Express gift card. We explained that we were trying something new to stay in touch with our community and that with their help, we could reach more fans.

Custom Content Creation

We know that fans really enjoy learning about the people behind the page. In an effort to humanize the FNE brand, we suggested that First New England Mortgage provide us with information and content to reveal what goes on in the office behind closed doors. We posted pictures of company events, employees, and even an office pizza party. These posts typically had twice the impressions of other posts. To build FNE’s image as an authority in the mortgage business, we also frequently posted about the housing market, mortgage statistics, and home tips. To stay relevant to local fans, SocialMadeSimple makes sure to post novel articles and local events. It’s important to keep a good balance of industry-related content, statistics, tips, suggestions, and current events.

Results

In just 3 months, FNE’s sweepstakes and custom content helped build its fan base to over 200 and increase fan engagement and impressions.
